5 ways to make the most of Pride Parade weekend

Celebrate the end of Boston's Pride Week in style.

MATT JUUL
matthew.juul@metro.us

Revelers will march from Copley Square to City Hall Plaza when the Boston Pride Parade takes over this weekend. Now in its 48th year, Saturday's celebration of the LGBTQ community is the marquee event of the city's annual Pride Week festivities, which wrap up on June 10. Before the fun officially comes to a close, here are five ways to make the most of things this weekend.

1 March and dance with Elizabeth Warren

If you still need to make parade plans, Elizabeth Warren has some ideas. The Massachusetts senator will once again march—and dance—during the annual festivities, and her team is inviting folks to join in on the fun this Saturday. Melissa Etheridge will also reportedly be there Sen. Warren. For those who want to boogie down with the senator, make sure to RSVP at my.elizabethwarren.com/page/s/boston-pride-2018.

2 Fuel up

Whether you need a quick bite before the parade, or want to fuel up after, these bars and restaurants have you covered. Stop by Red Lantern through Sunday to enjoy Pride Week specials named after famous LGBTQ stars, such as a George Takei Tataki and Ru Paul's Drag Dumplings.

On Saturday, Harvest in Harvard Square will host a Pride pop-up between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. featuring funky doughnut specials, while the Beehive in the South End is teaming up with Harpoon for a Pride beer garden, which will be open between 9:30 a.m. and 2 a.m. Speaking of beer, the Samuel Adams tap room has a "Love Conquers Ale" on draft, a blackberry basil lime gose, which will be available while supplies last.

Precinct Kitchen + Bar will also have a Pride celebration on Saturday dubbed Rainbows & Rosé. Head to the Back Bay hotspot to sip on peach rosé sangria and party to music by DJ Obey, who's bringing the beats starting at 1 p.m.

3 Set sail

The Pride Week fun hits the high seas with Classic Harbor Lines' Drag Brunch Cruise on Sunday. Tickets to the event are $70 and include a three-course brunch, signature cocktails, plus special drag performances. For more information, check out boston-sailing.com.

4 Rock out

After the parade wraps up, stick around City Hall Plaza to enjoy a special concert between noon and 6 p.m. on Saturday. Hosted by Fast Freddy and Verna Turbulence, the lineup includes headliners Martha Wash and Big Freedia, plus Long Arm Rex, Boketto The Wolf, Happy Little Clouds, Justin Dearborn, Niya Norwood and Queens with a Mission.

5 Party time

There are plenty of Pride parties going on around the city before and after the parade this weekend. The Revere Hotel Boston

PROVIDED

Common is hosting a big bash on its rooftop between 4 p.m. and 11 p.m. on Saturday, which includes raw bar and drink specials. Admission is $20 and tickets are available via Eventbrite. A number of block parties are also scheduled to go down in Jamaica Plain, Back Bay and other areas of Boston on Saturday and Sunday, with full details available at bostonpride.org. Seaport nightclub The Grand is also hosting a finale party on Sunday night.

PROJECT BREAD A FRESH APPROACH TO ENDING HUNGER

'Ocean's 8' is a fun flick with attitude,

The crime movie, starring an octet led by Sandra Bullock and Cate Blanchett, is more than just another action movie. It shows a group of women working together as a team escaping from stereotypes. DIEGO RAMMSY / MWN

Meet the new "Ocean's" gang. ALL PHOTOS BARRY WETCHER/WARNER BROS.

At first glance, the "Oceans' 8" project, a film from the franchise that director Steven Soderbergh made popular with the "Ocean's Eleven," "Ocean's Twelve" and "Ocean's Thirteen" trilogy, seemed nothing more than a female version of the original.

"When they told me the idea for the first time, I honestly did not know if it would work, I thought it was fun but I did not think it would be feasible," admits Sandra Bullock at the film's opening.

"Ocean's 8" brings together a team of female talents so strong and diverse that it turns what would be a standard action movie into a crime comedy with as many nuances as its expressive characters allow.

After spending five years, eight months and 12 days inside her cell planning what could be her final hit, Debbie (Sandra Bullock), sister of George Clooney's Danny Ocean, brings together a gang to steal a $150 million diamond necklace during the annual Met Gala in New York.

"But what this movie really is about is these eight wonderfully complex, intelligent and funny women, who will take you on their own journey and in all the twists and turns that will come," explains Bullock at the same Met, the place conveniently chosen for part of the cast to talk about the premiere.

Cate Blanchett plays Lou, a rebellious, determined and tough woman who will become Debbie's right hand in this difficult mission.

"Once I found out who the other women were going to be and knowing the franchise we were going to be a part of, I felt it would be a fun and great thing to do, and it's a risk but it was worth it," the actress acknowledges.

The rest of the gang is made up by fashion designer Rose Weil (Helena Bonham Carter), celebrity Daphne Kluger (Anne Hathaway), expert jeweler Amita (Mindy Kaling), housewife Tammy (Sarah Paulson), hacker Nine Ball (Rihanna) and the street pickpocket Constance (Awkwafina).

"What this movie really is about is these eight wonderfully complex, intelligent and funny women, who will take you on their own journey."

Sandra Bullock

Far from conventional

The film has a very prominent cast, which could only have happened thanks to a story that escapes conventional standards and is not satisfied with simply portraying minorities, but digs into very defined characters that narrate a crime comedy.

"We had a director [Gary Ross] who really loves women and who proposed a story in which they could do their thing, which is fantastic," adds Blanchett, because, this film has its own identity with complex characters.

"We cannot underestimate the power of visual representation and it is not that we are telling an 8-year-old girl to become a criminal, but that she can do what she really wants to do and that there is space for everyone," says Anne Hathaway.

According to Bullock, much of the result is due to the chemistry that the cast achieved while shooting.

"We had the opportunity to connect and share," she says. "We worked long hours, but once we lowered our guard and realized that we were among friends, we were able to connect with each other, because you usually do not have the opportunity to work with a group of women in a movie."

And just as its main character reflects, the film does not fall short on the issue of gender equality. "Women taking care of each other and working as a team, giving space to the most talented in each task and not fighting over some nonsense but fighting for a common good, for me, this is the real world, we are showing a lot of love and support and I think this will help with equality," Bullock says.

"Ocean's 8" opens in theaters June 8.

A very New York film

The Metropolitan Museum of Art on Fifth Avenue sits on the edge of Central Park and covers four full blocks. It's the U.S.'s largest museum. It allowed scenes of "Ocean's 8" to be shot inside for two weeks. The film also takes place in other parts of the Big Apple, so shots took place in several locations, including the Cartier Mansion; the annex of the Bushwick United Methodist Church; the Plaza Hotel; Christie's at Rockefeller Plaza; The Pierre Hotel; Casa Lever, a restaurant in the iconic Lever House on Park Avenue; Bergdorf Goodman department store; and the 52-story tower of the New York Times.

"New York has its own energy," says Bullock. "It lights something in you and keeps you alert."

Next big thing: Why you have to watch Marvel's 'Cloak & Dagger'

The superhero-themed teen drama debuts on Freeform.

ANDREW HUSBAND
letters@metro.us

Olivia Holt and Aubrey Joseph star in Marvel's "Cloak & Dagger." FREEFORM

Last year, the ever-expanding Marvel cinematic and television universes entered the young adult world for the first time with Hulu's "Runaways." They're about to do it again with "Cloak & Dagger," a new Freeform series developed by "Heroes" and "Daredevil" alum Joe Pokaski. Or at least that's the way it seems, for despite all the publicity's focus on the show's eponymous teenage duo, early reviews indicate that "Cloak & Dagger" is nothing like "Runaways."

What's it about?

Much like its comic book origins, "Cloak & Dagger" follows Tandy Bowen (Olivia Holt) and Tyrone Johnson (Aubrey Joseph), two teenagers from disparate backgrounds whose chance meeting reveals their unique power sets. Tandy can emit daggers of light from her hands, while Tyrone has the ability to envelope others in darkness and, whenever necessary, transport them and himself from one location to another. As they fall in love, they learn about a shared tragedy.

Why you should watch it

On the one hand, the many arms of Marvel practically necessitate that anyone who wants to keep up with the conversation should at least check out whatever the latest property is. On the other hand, that Pokaski is behind "Cloak & Dagger" should attract everyone's attention, regardless of their opinion of superhero properties. Yes, he cut his teeth with the breakout series "Heroes" and filed them further with Netflix's "Daredevil," but he also did WGN's "Underground."

Meet the cast

Seeing as how "Cloak & Dagger" is literally centered on two protagonists, you would think the production would have cast the two best leads it could find. That's exactly what Pokaski and his team did with Olivia Holt ("Kickin' It," "Status Update") and Aubrey Joseph ("The Night Of," "Run All Night"). Both have done plenty of television and film, but "Cloak & Dagger" is their first opportunity to shine. And judging by reviewers' reactions so far, Holt and Joseph succeed. Other notable cast members include veteran actor J. D. Evermore, "Power Rangers" alum Emma Lahana and "E.R." and "Mr. Robot" star Gloria Reuben.

How to watch

"Cloak & Dagger" premieres Thursday at 8 p.m. ET on Freeform. After that, already-aired episodes will be available to stream on demand or in the Freeform GO app.

2 Fredrick Beondo and his mission statement against messy recycling rummagers.

4 John Elari for his call to action for Grumble readers to submit more serious Grumbles. We've got work to do, Grumblers!

5 And last but not least, Brenda Miles and her Grumble about people who take up space with strollers on public transit.

READER RESPONSES:

ROWDY RED SOX FANS KNOCKING OVER METRO BOXES!
Good afternoon dear Metro! Since you launched the grumble I've been trying to build up enough frustration to produce a memorable one! Here's my favorite grumble topic: Whenever the Red Sox play Fenway, the beloved Metro Box in Kenmore Square gets tipped so that the hawkers can use it as a bench to belchout their ticket offers. As a consequence, I can't get my Metro! not even when they leave, since I'm not strong enough to put the box upright (I had people come up and help me... how's that for a positive :-), Michele Lynn?) Unthinkable. Hawkers, of all people, should always stand, right? And no, not stand on top of Metro Boxes. Any other newspaper, but not Metro!

Urine luck: Boston unveils restroom map

When you can no longer hold it in, you can now find the nearest public bathroom in the city, thank to a new interactive guide.

KRISTIN TOUSSAINT
kristin.toussaint@metro.us

A leisurely stroll around the city doesn't become so fun once you're trying to find the nearest public restrooms, but a new tool from the city of Boston is here to solve that problem.

This week, the city launched an interactive map that shows every public bathroom in Boston, along with what times they open and close.

Officials also listed out every bathroom by neighborhood, so you can see all the details for an area of the city. The database includes features of the public restrooms as well, like whether there are wheelchair-accessible stalls, if the restrooms have changing tables, whether the bathrooms are gender-specific and if there are no stairs involved.

This mapping effort is part of Age-Friendly Boston, an initiative by the city to make Boston a comfortable, accessible place for older adults.

"I am delighted about this restroom map."
One senior resident

Age-Friendly Boston has also spurred projects like a food access map that shows healthy, affordable options; a collection of job resources and training programs for seniors and efforts to target social isolation among Boston's elderly residents.

Here's how to find a public restroom the next time you're out and about in Boston. PXHERE/ CREATIVE COMMONS

The map was a partnership between the Commission on Affairs of the Elderly, the Mayor's Office of New Urban Mechanics and the Department of Innovation and Technology.

If you have a smartphone, just pull up the site when you're walking around — boston.gov/departments/311/public-restrooms-city-boston — and type in the address of where you are or even just the neighborhood or a nearby landmark. Then select the day of the week and whether you need a wheelchair-accessible or family bathroom.

For those without a smartphone, you can call 311 and the call taker will be able to use the map to locate the closest public restroom for you.

"I am delighted about this restroom map," one resident told the city. "It will allow us seniors to navigate the city more freely without fear!"

Child rapist held without bail on new lewd charges

The new charges stem from incidents at Shirley from June 3 and 4. ISTOCK

Convicted child rapist Wayne Chapman, who was expected to be released from prison soon, was ordered held without bail on Wednesday after pleading not guilty at his arraignment in Ayer District Court.

Chapman, 70, was arrested Wednesday and charged with indecent exposure, lewd, wanton and lascivious acts and open and gross lewdness and lascivious behavior stemming from two incidents inside the Massachusetts Correctional Institute — Shirley, where he has been held since 1977.

Chapman was set to be released from the medium-security prison, where he was sentenced to serve 30 years for the rapes of two boys. When that sentence was finished in 2017, prosecutors fought to keep him behind bars as a "sexually dangerous person," CBS reported, as court filings show he has admitted to molesting as many as 100 boys.

When Chapman petitioned for review this year, two psychologists ruled that he was no longer a danger.

But his release is no longer imminent after his latest arrest. The charges stem from incidents at Shirley from June 3 and 4, according to the Middlesex District Attorney's office, during which Chapman was witnessed by staff and nurses "with his genitals exposed and masturbating in his cell."

Wendy Murphy, an attorney for Chapman's victims, opposed the release. After the news of his latest arrest on Wednesday, she spoke with those victims.

"We are very pleased that Wayne Chapman will not be released," she said in a statement.

Murphy added: "It boggles the mind that not one but two qualified examiners could find this man not sexually dangerous. The absurdity of their decisions is why we have been fighting so hard to prevent his release."

Boston Pride president talks importance of 2018 event, 'Rainbow Resistance' theme

Boston Pride Parade 2018 is almost here with the theme "Rainbow Resistance." Hear what that means from Boston Pride President Sylvain Bruni.

kristin.toussaint@metro.us

Boston Pride Parade 2018 is around the corner and this year's event marks the 48th anniversary of a Pride celebration here. It's one of the largest public parades in New England, according to the organizers, and will feature 45,000 participants and more than 500,000 spectators.

Metro caught up with Sylvain Bruni, president of Boston Pride, to hear about what the 2018 event has in store, and why it's still an important effort as the LGBTQ community continues to face threats.

Sylvain Bruni: Our 2018 theme, "Rainbow Resistance" is a call for every segment of the community to unite in the resistance against the oppression and backwards policies of the current administration in Washington, the systematic threats to communities of color and trans people in the country and the potential repeal of trans equality legislation in Massachusetts. "Rainbow Resistance" amplifies Boston Pride's commitment to promote community engagement and inclusivity while striving for visibility and respect in unity. We want every community member and our allies to ask themselves how they can resist, during the Pride celebrations, and throughout the year.

Why is it important to take into account the current political climate in the Pride celebration? The recent U.S. Supreme court decision on the Colorado baker, and the upcoming November ballot referendum that would repeal transgender rights in Massachusetts, are the latest examples of how our LGBTQ community continues to be threatened by those who wants to deny us full equality under the law. The Boston Pride celebrations are a way to maintain the visibility of the LGBTQ community to a larger population, and show that our struggles continue across the state and across the country, and to advocate for progress, equality and respect for LGBTQ people.

How is this year's event different than previous years, either because of that climate or otherwise? The current political climate is certainly having a mobilizing impact on our Pride events and on our community. We have a record number of contingents marching this year in the parade – 360 compared to 330 last year (which was already a huge step up from 287 in 2016!)

> "'Rainbow Resistance' amplifies Boston Pride's commitment to promote community engagement and inclusivity while striving for visibility and respect in unity."

and we have more events this week than ever with 50-plus events throughout the month of June. The parade itself will be ever more political with hundreds of mayors from all over the country marching with Mayor [Marty] Walsh (they are in Boston attending the Conference of Mayors), with a Trans Remembrance group that commemorates the victims of transphobia and violence, and a gigantic contingent led by Freedom For All Massachusetts, the organization rallying over 1,000 groups to ensure the protection of trans rights in the Commonwealth.

What's your favorite part of Pride? Putting on the Pride Parade and all the Pride events is a tall order. As an all-volunteer organization, we couldn't do it without the dedication of all our Pride team members who give their blood, sweat, and tears (and cash!) year round to make this happen. My favorite part of the celebration is pausing for a second amid the parade and festival, taking a step back, and looking upon the crowd. Seeing that all of our hard work has an incredible impact on our community is delightful: we are creating spaces so that everyone in our community can be who they are, love who they love, and speak to their identity. It's all worth it because, after all, it's always someone's first Pride. So we need to be there for that new person joining the LGBTQ family during Pride.

This year is the 48th Boston Pride Parade. GETTY IMAGES

Sunday's parade route begins at Copley Square. BOSTON PRIDE

What do you want to say to people ahead of the event, who are considering going and who maybe have never been to Pride before? We know that for someone out there this will be their first Pride event and that makes us very happy that Boston Pride is able to provide a safe place for everyone to feel free to be their authentic self, to be who they are. So put on your rainbow and Pride gear, check out our Boston Pride Guide at bostonpride.org/guide for information about all our events and articles about topics relevant to our community, and jump in. Break Free from Neuropathy with a New Supportive Care Cream

A patented relief cream stands to help millions of Americans crippled from the side effects neuropathy by increasing sensation and blood flow wherever it's applied

Raymond Wilson
The Associated Heath Press

AHP – A recent breakthrough stands to help millions of Americans plagued by burning, tingling and numb legs and feet.

But this time it comes in the form of a cream, not a pill, suggesting the medical community may have been going about the problem all wrong.

The breakthrough, called Diabasens, is a new relief cream developed for managing the relentless discomfort caused by neuropathy.

When applied directly to the legs and feet, it causes arteries and blood vessels to expand, increasing the flow of warm, nutrient rich blood to damaged tissue.

However, what's most remarkable about the cream...and what makes it so brilliant...is that it contains one of the only natural substances known to activate a special sensory pathway right below the surface of the skin.

This pathway is called TRAP1 and it controls the sensitivity of nerves. In laymen terms, it determines whether you feel pins and needles or soothing relief.

Studies show that symptoms of neuropathy arise when the nerves in your legs deteriorate and blood flow is lost to the areas which surround them.

As the nerves begins to die, sensation is lost. This lack of sensation is what causes the feelings of burning, tingling and numbness.

This is why the makers of Diabasens say their cream has performed so well in a recent clinical use survey trial. It increases sensation and blood flow where ever its applied.

No Pills, No Prescriptions, No Agony

Until now, many doctors have failed to consider a topical cream as an effective way to manage neuropathy. Diabasens is proving it may be the only way going forward.

"Most of today's treatment methods have focused on minimizing discomfort instead of attacking its underlining cause. That's why millions of adults are still in excruciating pain every single day, and are constantly dealing with side effects" explains Dr. Esber, the creator of Diabasens.

"Diabasens is different. Since the most commonly reported symptoms – burning, tingling and numb legs and feet – are caused by lack of sensation of the nerves, we've designed the formula increase their sensitivity.

And since these nerves are located right below the skin, we've chosen to formulate it as a cream. This allows for the ingredients to get to them faster and without any drug like side effects" he adds.

Study Finds Restoring Sensation the Key To Effective, Long Lasting Relief

With the conclusion of their latest human clinical use survey trial, Dr. Esber and his team are now offering Diabasens nationwide. And regardless of the market, its sales are exploding.

Men and women from all over the country are eager to get their hands on the new cream and, according to the results initial users reported, they should be.

In the trial above, as compared to baseline, participants taking Diabasens saw a staggering 51% increase sensitivity in just one week. This resulted in significant relief from burning, tingling and nubmness throughout their legs.

Many participants taking Diabasens described feeling much more balanced and comfortable throughout the day. They also noticed that after applying, there was a pleasant warming sensation that was remarkably soothing.

Diabasens Users Demand More

Many of Diabasens users say their legs have never felt better. For the first time in years, they are able to walk free from the symptoms which have made life hard.

"I have been using the cream now for about ten days. It has given me such relief.

I've had very bad foot pain from injuries and overuse of my feet for years which have contributed to severe itching/tingling and pain for some time. (My father also suffered from this pain and itching. I wish I would have had this for him.)

The first time I used the cream, I felt an almost immediate relief from this.

I now use it at least twice a day: once in the morning before work and once at night before I sleep.

I am so delighted with this. It has helped my walking, also. It has helped generate feeling again in my feet," raves Marsha A. from Texas

Diabasens is shown to provide relief from:

- Burning
- Tingling
- Numbness
- Swelling
- Heaviness
- Cold extremities

Diabasens is a topical cream that is to be applied to your legs and feet twice a day for the first two weeks then once a day after. It does not require a prescription.

The active ingredient is a compound known as cinnamaldehyde.

Topical Creams Offer Sufferers a Safer, More Effective Avenue of Relief: Diabasens increases sensation and blood flow wherever its applied. It's now being used to relieve painful legs and feet.

Studies show that neuropathy and nerve pain is caused when the peripheral nerves breakdown and blood is unable to circulate into your legs and feet.

As these nerves deteriorate, sensation is lost. This is why you may not feel hot or cold and your legs and feet may burn, tingle and go numb.

Additionally, without proper blood flow, tissues and cells in these areas begin to die, causing unbearable pain.

The cinnamaldehyde in Diabasens is one of the only compounds in existence that can activate TRPA1, a special sensory pathway that runs through your entire body.

According to research, activating this pathway (which can only be done with a cream) increases the sensitivity of nerves, relieving feelings of tingling and numbness in your legs and feet.

Supporting ingredients boost blood flow, supplying the nerves with the nutrients they need for increased sensation.

Amazing Relief Exactly Where You Need It

With daily use, Diabasens users report remarkable improvements in their quality of life without of the negative side effects or interactions associated with prescription drugs.

Readers can now enjoy an entirely new level of comfort that's both safe and affordable. It is also extremely effective, especially if nothing else has worked.

Discounted Supply of Diabasens for Local Readers

This is the official release of Diabasens. As such, the company is offering a special discounted supply to any reader who calls within the next 48 hours.

A special hotline number and discounted pricing has been created for all Massachusetts residents. Discounts will be available starting today at 6:00AM and will automatically be applied to all callers.

Your Toll-Free Hotline number is 1-800-615-0383 and will only be open for the next 48 hours. Only a limited discounted supply of Diabasens is currently available in your region.

Find out what came "Before Pop" at Pittsburgh's The Andy Warhol Museum

The artist's hometown museum will be exhibiting his early works all summer long.

PAT KING
patrick.king@metro.us

The Andy Warhol Bridge is one of the three "sister bridges". JP DIROLL PHOTOGRAPHY

Andy Warhol, one of Pittsburgh's most celebrated artists, also happens to be one of the world's greatest innovators of modern art and all things "cool." Since the 'Burgh was his place of birth, it is also home to The Andy Warhol Museum.

"Andy Warhol is an icon and is hugely responsible for making Pittsburgh such a world-renown destination for arts and culture," said Craig Davis, president and CEO of VisitPITTSBURGH.

In association with the Carnegie Museums, this seven-story museum displays the largest collection of his artwork, archival materials, and is one of the most finely curated and comprehensive single artist museums in the world.

For any Warhol fan, The Warhol Museum is a must-see and the perfect destination for lovers of modern art.

"When visitors come to the museum they are exposed to a personal, much more intimate, perspective on Warhol—one that you wouldn't find at another museum," says Jessica Beck, Milton Fine Curator of Art . "Visitors get to see that Warhol was putting out an enormous amount of work during his lifetime, and that within each decade he had different ideas and approaches to art making that was not just about Marilyn Monroe, Campbell's Soup and the Disaster paintings that he made in the 1960s. He also made film, photography, still-life paintings, portraits, abstract paintings, and large-scale religious works.. There are many different sides to Warhol that you can uncover when you come here."

Before the pop artist, there was the adman

Most people generally know about Warhol's work through his giant pop art odes to brands like Campbell's soup, his youth generation films from the '60s or even as manager of the Velvet Underground during his New York Factory days. But, a lot of his fans may be unfamiliar with his work before this time. That is why The Andy Warhol Museum is currently presenting a new exhibition of the collection, "Adman: Warhol Before Pop" which displays Warhol's award-winning work as a commercial artist in New York's advertising industry in the 1950s. Thinking about him mixing it up with the Mad Men of the day is an interesting enough image — but his art spoke for itself in the work he was commissioned to do early on in his career as a young artist.

Andy Warhol, Shoe and Leg ("December Shoe"), ca. 1956, The Andy Warhol Museum, Pittsburgh, THE ANDY WARHOL FOUNDATION FOR THE VISUAL ARTS, INC.

"The exciting thing about Warhol's 1950s work is that once you know the layers and the dimensions to his first decade, you can have a better understanding of the rest of his career," explains Beck. "Within that first decade," she adds, "there are so many layers to his practice. There is a really sensitive eye for design color and skill. There is also a daring presentation of his sexuality, in a way. He is creating a feminine space in his work by taking on feminine products like perfume bottles, cosmetics, shoes and jewelry."

This exhibit at The Warhol Museum will culminate in a special gala titled "Window Dressing: An Evening of Fashion from the Eons Archives"on Friday, July 13 at 7 p.m. The event will bring alive the spirit of Warhol's 1950s with cocktails, music and even models posing in period-specific clothing from the Eons Fashion Antique curated by owner Richard Parsakian. Many of the pieces in Parsakians archives include clothing and fashion accessories that Warhol had created ads for during this time period. On the cash bar menu, there will be special cocktails created by the Ladies United for the Preservation of Endangered Cocktails (LUPEC) inspired by drinks that Andy's mother, Julia Warhola, used to make. Fifties attire isn't mandatory to get into this party, but the organizers of the event strongly encourage visitors to try and look the part.

LEBRON TO CELTICS IS NOT AN ENTIRELY INSANE SCENARIO

OPINION

DANNY PICARD

Listen to "The Danny Picard Show" at dannypicard.com. Follow him on Twitter @dannypicard

No, I don't think it's crazy. In fact, it makes too much sense.

LeBron James to Boston. Make it happen.

When NBA free agency begins, it'll be James' decision. Does he stick with the Cleveland Cavaliers on a one-year, $35.6 million player option, or does he choose to opt out and become a free agent?

By all indications, dating back to rumors that began before this season even started, James is going to leave Cleveland for Los Angeles this summer because he owns a house a half hour from the Staples Center. That would leave the Lakers and Clippers as his only options.

But on ESPN's "First Take" on Wednesday, Stephen A. Smith said that James is going to talk to seven teams this summer: Cleveland, the Lakers, Miami, Philadelphia, Houston, Golden State, and yes, Boston.

"He's going to have a conversation with Boston," said Smith, who isn't the first person to bring up the Celtics when discussing James' future plans.

On Fox Sports 1 last week, former Celtic Antoine Walker said James should consider wearing green.

"Now you're gonna think I'm crazy, but if I were [LeBron], I'm going to Boston," said Walker. "Yeah, I'm going to Boston. I mean, Kevin Durant did it. Kevin Durant joined the best. And the best team in the Eastern Conference right now would be the Boston Celtics. I would figure out a way to get to Boston, if I'm LeBron James. Even the playing field.

"If I'm Danny Ainge, I'm taking a shot at him," Walker continued. "I want to even the playing field. If LeBron James is free, I want to even the playing field. And that's how you even the playing field."

The more I watch the Golden State Warriors dominate, the more I want to see James in a Celtics uniform. Much like how I wanted to see Kevin Durant choose the Celtics two summers ago. Durant was the best player available. And he chose Golden State.

This summer, if James does opt out of his deal in Cleveland, he will be the best player available. And yeah, I'll say it, the Celtics should go get him.

Not sure I ever thought these words would come out of my mouth, but, Antoine Walker is right. Danny Ainge and James should team up in order to even the playing field.

The C's would have to get creative in order to rid themselves of one of their current max contracts, but as long as Kyrie Irving isn't the sacrificial lamb, adding James would undoubtedly make the Celtics the best team in the East, if not the entire NBA. It would, as Walker advised, "even the playing field."

I'm not convinced that Irving and James dislike each other. Did you see the way they hugged it out after playing against each other this year? Heck, they still do their own personal handshake together.

LeBron recently told ESPN's Rachel Nichols before the Finals that "it was just bad for our franchise to just trade away our superstar point guard."

Doesn't look or sound like a broken friendship to me.

Maybe it was part of the plan. As in, "Hey Kyrie, demand a trade and get out of here now, and I'll join you next summer."

Or maybe James just wants to be on the best team that's not named the Warriors. If that's the case, he'll have more than just a conversation with the Celtics.

He'll take his talents to Boston.

Sale ain't great in the big spot

Sale will face his former team for just the second time this Friday night at Fenway.

MATT BURKE
matthew.burke@metro.us

Chris Sale has struggled in big moments so far during his Red Sox tenure. GETTY IMAGES

In Chris Sale's first two months with the Red Sox last season, he was sensational. Through his first 10 games of the 2017 season, he owned a 2.34 ERA and had a 5-2 record. He was routinely pitching into the eighth inning.

Then he ran into his old team in Chicago.

On May 30, 2017, Sale lasted just five innings against the White Sox at Guaranteed Rate Field — allowing five earned runs off of 10 hits. By Sale standards, it was a putrid outing even though he actually earned the win in the game — a 13-7 Red Sox victory.

"We were both off," Sale said after that game of himself and former teammate Jose Quintana. "I think people were expecting something a little different. But they came to a 7 o'clock batting practice."

Unlike his current teammate David Price, Sale has typically owned it when he's stunk up the joint. When he was pounded in Game 1 of the ALDS last season against Houston Sale was remorseful, saying, "I never really gave my team a chance to win."

Sale has been overwhelmingly outstanding during his eight months pitching in Boston, but there are whispers as to whether or not he can handle the pressure of a big game. He floundered against his old team in his only meeting against them last year, and was rocked in the playoffs in the fall. He again faced Houston last Friday night and gave up four earned runs in six innings in a 7-3 Red Sox loss.

The White Sox (19-39) have the second-worst record in baseball heading into Friday night's game (7, NESN) against Sale and the Red Sox at Fenway. It's against his old 'mates, yes. But it's not exactly Game 7 of the ALCS at Yankee Stadium, either. If Sale struggles Friday night against the hapless Pale Hose then we should have real concerns about Sale and pressure moments.
